Announcement of the Bureau of the Royal Household

No. 47

Today, the Committee of Royal Physicians reported on the treatment of His Majesty the King's condition from diverticulitis (inflammation) of diverticulum of the large intestine (colon) that he has no fever and his respiratory system is normal. He has no pain in the lower abdomen. His general condition is satisfactory. He is able to partake more of a soft diet. The Royal Physicians have requested continuing antibiotics given intravenously for the full course.
